The case of the Kit Carter cattle company state Harlem cattle company, is still on trial before Judge Dundy. The federal grand jury is investigating charges against about dozen residents in the western part of the state, for stealing timber from government lands. It is stated that ar-rests will follow in a few days. The horse railway injunction imbroglio was pgain—taken up by Judge Dundy yesterday.

Matters pertaining to a modification of th terms of the injunction were suggested by the court to the contestants. The tenor of the suggestions was regarding the manne in which both companies might complete their work provided they concluded to continue the under a modified order of the court. company, through its attorney has offered the perpetual use of the track to the horse car company, provided it was allowed to lay its track to the west approach of the Douglas street bridge, and also that it receive a reasonable stipulation for the use of the track, but this has not been approval by the horse car It is generally thought that the matter will result in the motor company completing its work in conformity to a certain extent with the demand made by the horse car company. Attorney Howe when questioned concerning the latter movement vesterday, stated that he was not prepared t state whether his company would or would not concede this point. He also stated that it was not the desire of the opposing element construct one foot of track on the contests ground, but only to stand in the way of his company and prevent it from direct connec

The Chicago & Northwestern railroad filed a petition yesterday asking that the case of Mary Macdonald versus the Chicago & forthwestern railroad be removed from the district court of Douglas county to the Unite States court Mrs Macdonald claims $2 000 damages for personal injuries caused by the company's neglect.

The petit jury have been excused from further duty until 10 a. m. Friday morning District Court.

The divorce suit of Small vs Small is still before Judge Doane. Yesterday a large number of witnesses were put on the stand. The plaintiff, Mrs. Small, who is a handsome brunette, and appears in court elegantly at tired, was examined yesterday afternoon Her examination-in-chief and cross-examination occupied nearly all the afternoon. Mrs. Small was subjected to a most rigid crossexamination by Attorney Offutt. She de nied the alleged adultery point blank. Willtams had been denied her house since the in stitution of this action, because he was the gause of all her trouble.

When asked if she knew Elmer O. Jack son, an employe at the Union Pacific head quarters, Mrs. Small replied in the negative She knew a gentleman with a heavy black moustache, who wore eye-glasses. Interro gated by counsel closely, plaintiff finally admitted that she did know this dark-mous tached gentleman, and knew his name was Jackson. She had met him on the street and accompanied him to ice cream parlors When asked if she had Jackson's picture, a negative reply was given. Closely pressed counsel, she at length admitted that she had one in her possession. Attorney Offutt-When I asked you, Mrs. Small, had you Mr. Jackson's picture or not, Why did you deny it?

Witness—Because I didn't think it was any of your business to know She had known Jackson three years, and wet never knew his first name.

During her cross-examination the plaintiff cried bitterly at times. Amongst other witnesses called, J. G. Kennedy, residing at 1424 North Twenty fourth street, testified to a conversation tha took place between himself and defendant, relative to visiting a house of ill-fame. This witness couldn't say when the conversation had occurred. It might have been last year, or three years ago. He had been living, in Omaha since 1855. He never knew that such places as assignation houses existed in this city until the defendant spoke to him. The case will be continued to day.

Proceedings in a divorce suit have been filed by George Spurrier against Catharine Spurrier. The plaintiff states that he was duly married to the defendant in London, England, is May, 1868, and for the past three years has resided in this county; that on di-vers occasions the defendant has been guilty vers occasions the defendant has been guilty of adultery, but with parties whose names are unknown. He also complains of extreme crucity shown him by the defendant when they were residing on Patrick avenue in this city, and that on the 23d day of August, 1888, the defendant and her daughter left their home, went to St. Joseph, Mo., and opened a house of assignation, where they still reside. For these reasons the dissolution of the mat rimonial ties is asked.

Moses Block has entered suit against O. E. Martis in an action to recover judgment in the sum of $834.73 for damage result-ing from goods being destroyed by water leaking through the roof. The complainant states that he occupies a building at 704 north Sixteenth street, and that the defendant who 'owns the property in repairing the roof needlessly exposed his stock of goods to the weather, in which in stance damage resulted from a rain storm to the extent of the above amount.

The jury in the case of Bernard Graus, charged with having received stolen prop-erty, returned a verdict of guilty, assessing the property received at $500. A motion for new trial will be made at an early date. The brother of Graus is now serving out a one year term at Fort Madison penthary of lows. naving been convicted of similar offense it

Judge Shields is in recoint of a letter from L. Moller, of Borgense, Denmark, inquiring about the chattels of Hans Olsen, who died in this city in November, 1887. The missive was scritten in the Danish tanguage and the upon its translation. Oskhamp & Hames have entered suit against William Askwith, asking for the recovery of $201.30, the balance of an account due for goods sold and delivered.

The Justices.

J. E. Sackett endorsed a note signed by Alf Newman and wife, and yesterday had to pay $32.3 t nto the court of Justice O'Con-nell for doing so.

For Resisting an Officer. Police Judge Berka and a jury were engaged last night in trying two men, Kucha and Seimoniaca, who were charged with resisting a constable from South Omaha named Finnerty, in the execution of his duty. Some days ago Finnerty went to the saloon kept by the defendants on Thirteenth street, to obtain possion of a piano, at the instance of Jetter & Young. Kucha and his partner re sisted the seizure and threw the constable out of the house. Captain Duff Green's services were called into requisition and he promptly placed the belligerent saleouists behind the bars. The defendants were represented by counsel, but the jury found them guilty. Sen-tence will be passed to-day by Judge Berka.

The wife was examined before Judge cese, and plead not guilty to the charge of being an accessory after the fact, to the murder of Reten and Ashley. Taking the stand, she testified that on the day of the murder she was getting dinner, when Roten and Ashley drove up and fastened their horses to Haunstine's wagon and then came into the house. Haunstine and wife invited them to take dinner, which they declined. Haunstine gave to one of the men the clock, afterwards found in the dead man's pocket. Then the visitors went out, and Haunstine and wife sat down to dinner. After eating, Haunstine arose and went out, closing the door, and his wife washed the dishes. She heard two shots but did not look out, as ner husband often practiced about the place. After fifteen or thirty minutes he came in, saying: "I've done a bad deed," and "we must get out of here." Witness did not see the bodies, but was told that they were under the pile of hay. He wished her to stay there, but she would not with two dead men lying around. Taking bedding and a few things, and a roll f butter, the couple started, with their orses hitched to the buggy of the deceased, and leading the horses of the dead. As they tarted Haunstine looked at a watch he taken from one body, and it was 3 o'clock. That was the first witness knew of the robbery of the dead. Haunstine left he lead horses at a deserted stable and drove to Arnold. They met a number of teams on the road. At Arnold they changed horses and drove down the Loup, traveling all night and all the next day. They avoided towns and slept near haystacks. Near Madison Haunstine hired out to nusk corn and worked several days. At Madison he sold the team and buggy for $75 and sent the wife to Columbus by train. Dedication at Petersburg. Petersburg, Neb., Nov. 27 .- | Special to THE BEE, | - The new M. E. church at Petersburg was dedicated Sunday, November 25 A large audience assembled. Rev. J. W. Shonk, presiding elder of Grand Island district, officiated, assisted by Rev. H. G. Pitenger, of Albion, and the pastor, W. A. Wilson, Rev. Vandorn, of the Presbyterian church, was also present. The presiding elder preached an impressive and powerful sermon from John 17:21. He then called for $400, the amount needed to cover the indebtedness. The congregation responded with a subscription of $145, $40 of which is to be applied to the purchase of an organ. Mr. John Peters then, in behalf of the trustees, presented the church for dedication, and it was formally and solemnly dedicated. In the evening Rev. H. G. Pittenger preached an excellent sermon to a large audience, from John 1:29. The choir rendered splendid music at both services. The church is thought to be the fluest in Boone county, and is 26x46, with side towers. Commissioner Dey feels rather happy, as he did not sign the schedule which is now enjoined. The notice of Judge Brewer's de cision reached here just in the nick of time The commissioners had taken up three cases of alleged violation of this schedule, and had made franscripts of the overcharges, as they papers, together with instructions to attorney general to begin suit against the railroads for violation of their decision of November 3. The papers and in-structions had just been scaled and directed, but not mailed, when the telegram was received announcing that Judge Brewer had enjoined them from en-forcing that schedule. They concluded to not send the letters.

What will the commissioners now do! is the question every one asks. It is understood that the attorney general advises the commissioners to go ahead with their suits and pay no attention to Judge Brewer's innction, and let him make a test case The attorney general, in fact, so advised them openly to day, but the commissioners are not disposed to be quite so fast, especially as it is their bodies that are in peopardy. They show more discretion than their legal adviser, and have concluded to keep still and let the cases take their proper course in the courts, as Judge Brewer directed. Some hot-headed individuals are talking of an extra session of the legislature and think that the governer is disposed to call one to make a set of maximum rates, in dependent of the commissioners. But as the railroads would still be at liberty to seek relief in the federal courts if they considered the rates unreasonable, there does not seem to be much to be gained by that move. The governor declines to be interviewed, simply saying that he has not determined what is the best course to pursue.

WAVERLY, Ia., Nov. 27 .- "Yankee" Sulli van, proprietor of the Northwestern hotel at Sumner, became intoxicated last night, and compelled several of his boarders, at the point of a revolver, to drink with him. A young telegraph operator named McClelland refused, and an altercation followed, which terminated in Sullivan shooting at the young man. The weapon was aimed at McClel land's heart, but the bullet struck a button and was deflected, inflicting only a slight wound. Sullivan was disarmed before h could fire a second shot. Much indignation was expressed over the matter, and for a time it was thought that Sullivan would meet with rough treatment, but he was finally lodged in jail without interference. He waived an examination to-day and was committed without bail to await the action of the graud jury. Sullivan is well known among turfmen, having owned several fast trotters. He has borne a good reputation except for his drinking propensities.

MORE TERRIBLE THAN APACHES. General Crook Retreats Before an Audience of Chicago Arabs. CHICAGO, Nov. 27,-General George W. Crook, the Indian fighter, got the worst of it at the recent Thanksgiving dinner of the Waifs' Sunday school. The general, in order to add interest to the proceedings, had yielded to the urgent requests of the school directors, and promised to tell the boys what he knew about Indians. He looked as though he could do it, too, when he walked to the front of the stage, with a good-humored smile on his bearded face. But the general had reckoned badly. He had faced the Apaches in their strongholds, but he had never confronted Chicago waifs. And before he knew it, the general had a very bad case of stage fright. The twelve hundred street savages in front of him, embracing representatives of almost every nationality and degree of deviltry cat dogued to date, were making a pandemonium beside which the yell of a band of Comanches would have seemed the song of a canary bird. The general lost his voice, already hoarse, and what he said could be heard only a few feet from the stage. He said when the war closed he was in command of 60,000 men. He went out to Idaho at the head of a small band, and had a continual flight with the red-skins. "All we had was a tooth-brush and a change of undercloth-ing," said the general. "We did not dare to run our heads out for fear of being scalped. One day we took a troop of cavalry and some scouts and had a fight with the In dians, and some on both sides were killed and we kept that up for two years, and finally beat them. The general concluded by telling the boys if they wanted to make good Indian fighters they must keep their health, and then he went back to his seat looking as though he had just come from a six days' fight with Geronimo and was glad to get away with all
